IT'S 75 LAPS FOR THE OUTLAW SUPER LATE MODELS THIS FRIDAY

FRIDAY JULY 6: STOCK FOUR NIGHT

We return to racing this Friday. The Outlaw Super Late Models highlight the night with the running of the Allstar Performance Firecracker 75. No Super Late driver has held the point lead for more than one race; Todd Harrington has the current lead. Will he keep the lead or give it up to any of the drivers within 50 points of him (Phil Bozell, Mark Shook, Doug True and Andy Bozell). Aj Foote has the point lead in the Late Model Sportsman over Kenny Head, Buddy Head, Keegan Dykstra and Lane Head. The Street Stocks have the night off. The Outlaw FWD race is tight with Ricky LaDuke having moved to within 38 points of leader Jason Essex following LaDuke's feature win on June 15. In the Zoo Stocks, Curtis Towne is the new point leader over Colin Bozell and Jerry Ballard. All classes have treated fans to exciting and competitive racing. We will see YOU at the races!

We've said it before and we'll say it again. Kalamazoo Speedway has the BEST fans. Thank everyone for coming out to the track and sweating with us! The heat kept a bundle of folks at home but for those of us who showed up, it was a great time.

There are daredevil stunts (such as the ones the three cyclists performed) and novelty races all night long at one of these “wreck something” nights – and then there are DAREDEVIL STUNTS. With Scarecrow in the house, you know there will be stunts with an explanation point. Fans coming into the grandstands wondered what the heck those four cars were doing standing up on their toes making like ballerinas on the front stretch. And Scarecrow answered that question! Kalamazoo Speedway has Scarecrow booked for the September 15 Night of Destruction. He is not to be missed.

Flagman Rick Beebe lines up the finalists, Travis Rozner and Adam Terry, in the Spectator Drags. In an all Chevy finale, it was Rozner (in the Impala) prevailing in the best two of three laps for the $250 first prize. Terry took home the runner-up purse of $100. Both left with bragging rights.

Travis Rozner (#22) went home with the first place purse of $600 in the trailer race speeding through 20 laps of mayhem to do so. (See his pop-up camper to the left, one photo down.) Cam Barthel (Zoo Stock driver) went home with the $200 prize for the Fan Favorite Most Original Trailer Design. He lost the barrels and their slippery contents during the race but the mannequin stayed put allowing him to remain in the competition and nab second place. Evidence to the contrary in some shots, the field DID run in the tradition direction.

Mike Rozner (Zoo Stock driver) was the victor in the $500 to win Demolition Derby. We love his enthusiasm (on top of his car when he was declared the winner). Adam Terry put up a valiant fight in the #42 van. (Iron Man Terry was the only driver to run in the Derby, bus race and trailer races plus the spectator drags). Are those flames coming out from Rozner's fire suit?? Was is THAT hot?

Way more complicated than Jenga or Bottle Tops, Gary Howe managed to stack four cars for Scarecrow's second stunt all with every eye in the place pinned on him while Howe's field of vision was limited. Nerves of Steel! Scarecrow's landing was rougher than expected and he was unable to end the night with a planned third stunt. He was checked out at the hospital and thanks everyone for their concern; he's fine and will be back!

In addition to smashing plenty of cars and vans beneath them, the monster trucks put on quite the aerial show.

We don't really have a winner in the bus races but Brock Sweeter (shown behind Keith Wilfong in the yellow 75) says he was the victor and we aren't going to argue with him.

Celebrate and give thanks! It's Independence Day!
