It's the return of the 'Merica Night at the Zoo. There'll be something for everyone. A 50-lap enduro, racing by the Street Stock ($1,000 to win), MCR Dwarfs and the Midwest Dirt Series. Then there's the Stacker Cars, truck pulls, a bumper bash derby plus spectator drags. Capping off the night will be fireworks. Skyboxes are available. Tickets are available July 3 at the ticket windows beginning at 2:00 PM. This is a leased event: grandstand and pit pass punch cards plus Speedway issued coupons are not valid for this event.

JUNE 25, 2022 🏁🏁 RED, WHITE & BOOM RECAP IN PHOTOS

A few random and short-lived sprinkles didn't dampen the enthusiasm for the annual Red, White and Boom Night of Destruction. By all accounts it was a real crowd pleaser. Mark your calendars for the Legendary Night of Destruction on Saturday, September 17.

Tim Gale and Aaron Anderson won the chain race.

Young Travis Rife made his debut in a Monster Truck and showed he was up to the challenge.

The Stacker cars raced around the track and through the infield requiring some precision steering and braking coordination between drivers who couldn't communicate with each other. Tim Gale and Aaron Anderson's stacker tipped over (a first at Kalamazoo Speedway) and later Racin' Mason Dixon and Kenny Wright smacked into Gale's overturned car. In the end it was Paul Jakubik and Chad Vandenberg taking first place.

Cars and mattresses were flying in the mattress race. Rielly Meade drove the car that won the race with brother, Logan, and dad, Tim, acting as crew to get the mattress secured on top of the car.

Eric Rabb won the trailer race in a crowded field. Stephen Emmans won the Minivan Madness.

Racin' Mason Dixon (right), an aspiring stock car champion, comedian, storyteller and public speaker. visited the Speedway bringing his zany persona and energy. He dove right in with live interviews and climbed in a stacker car with Kenny Wright. (photo taken from video shot by Racin' Mason Dixon and posted to the Speedway Facebook page)

After the trailer races came the bus races.

Scarecrow performed a couple of stunts: Launching off a ramp to crash through cars stacked on a bus then performed some pyrotechnics of his own before fireworks filled the skies.
